

The House of the Brazilian Woman: an interdisciplinary community-based participatory action research (CBPAR) program in a public One-stop Center (OSC) to support survivors of violence

Marcos Signorelli, Rozeli Vicelli, Raíza da Rocha, Maryana Arantes, Jainy Rosa, Jackeline Souza, Sandra Prado, Dabney P. Evans
Federal University of Parana (UFPR), Curitiba, Brazil; City Hall of Curitiba, Brazil; Emory University, Atlanta, USA

THREE AXES OF CBPAR

1) analysis of the potential and challenges of the HBW as part of the cross-sectoral network to support women experiencing violence

2) translation and cross-cultural adaptation into Brazilian Portuguese of instruments for measuring violence and promoting safety planning

3) APP Development for safety planning: EU DECIDO (I DECIDE)

- Psychosocial support
- Temporary Shelter
- Coordination
- Public Defender
- Specialized Police
- Forensic Department
- Court

tedis.pro.br

signore@ufpr.br

@DrSignorelli

